W27. MILITARY PRISON, FORT LEAVENWORTH

[By act approved Mar. 3, 1873 (Stat. L. v. 17, p. 582), provision was made for the establishment of a Military Prison at Rock Island, Ill., to be governed by a board under the Secretary of War. * By the amendment of May 21, 1874 (Stat. L. v. 18, pt. 3, p. 48) the location of the proposed prison was changed to Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Abolished July 1, 1895, under act approved Mar. 3, 1895 (Stat. L. v. 28, p. 957). The property was used by the Penitentiary under the Justice Department (J6.) until Feb. 1, 1906, when the property was restored to the War Department. Congress authorized the reconstruction and reestablishment of the Military Prison at Fort Leavenworth.

The sundry civil act of Mar. 4, 1909 (Stat. L. v. 35, pt. 1, p. 1004) carried with the appropriation for the continuance of the reconstruction of the prison the proviso that "hereafter the government and control of the United States Military Prison shall, under the Secretary of War, be vested in the Board of Commissioners of the United States Soldiers' Home * * *."

W28. ARMY SERVICE SCHOOLS

[The military schools now called Army Service Schools are situated at Fort Leavenworth, Kans. The first such school there was founded by General orders 42, 1881, and opened by General orders 8, 1882, under the name of School of Application for Cavalry and Infantry, the name being changed by General orders 39, 1886, to United States Infantry and Cavalry School. During the war with Spain, the work of the school was discontinued, but preparations were going on to reopen it on a larger scale and in coordination with other schools to be established at Fort Leavenworth. General orders 155, 1901, called it General Service and Staff College, and on further reorganization by General orders 115, 1904, it was divided into two schools called Infantry and Cavalry School and Staff College, provisions being also made for a Signal School. These three, retaining their own names, were, together, called the Army Service Schools at Fort Leavenworth. By General orders 211, 1907, the artillery was represented in the Infantry and Cavalry School, and thereupon the name of that school was again changed, being since known as the Army School of the Line. By this same order the other schools were designated as Army Signal School and Army Staff College. As the commandant of the Army School of the Line is ex officio commandant of the other Army Service Schools at Fort Leavenworth, and all are coordinated, one report being required for all, the publications of all are classed here.†

† By General orders 69, Apr. 20, 1910, there is to be added to the Army Service Schools at Fort Leavenworth an Army Field Engineer School, while the annual report for 1910 promises the establishment of an Army Field Service School for Medical Officers.

W29. COAST ARTILLERY SCHOOL

[The Artillery School at Fort Monroe, Va., was established by General orders 99, Nov. 13, 1867, though for many years, extending back as far as 1823, a school, but in name only, had existed at that place. By General orders 178, Aug. 28, 1907, the name of the school was changed to Coast Artillery School, and it was prepared to consolidate with the School of Submarine Defense (W61.). The latter was discontinued Aug. 1, 1908, by General orders 27, Mar. 3, 1908, the consolidation taking effect Sept. 1, 1908.]
