W64. ATLANTIC DIVISION

[Established by General orders 118, June 27, 1865, to comprise 5 departments, namely, the East, Middle, Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina. The division and its departments (except the Department of the East) were all discontinued Aug. 6, 1866, by General orders 59.

The Division of the Atlantic was reorganized by General orders 10, Feb. 12, 1868, comprising 3 departments, the East (W17.), Washington (W52.), and the Lakes (W19.). In 1869, by General orders 18, the Department of Washington was merged in the Department of the East. The Department of Virginia (W67.) by General orders 11, 1870, was reestablished Jan. 29, 1870, as part of the Atlantic Division, and on June 1 of the same year, by General orders 41, was merged in the Department of the East.

In 1873 the Department of the East and the Department of the Lakes were abolished. In 1876, by General orders 50, the Department of the South (W66.), and in 1877, by General orders 42, the Department of the Gulf were added to the Atlantic Division. In 1877, by General orders 101, the Department of the East was reestablished as part of this division. The Department of the Gulf was merged in the Department of the South by General orders 38, 1878, and that in turn was merged in the Department of the East by General orders 71, 1883.

The Atlantic Division was abolished in 1891 by General orders 57, and reestablished Jan. 15, 1904, by General orders 65, 1903, War Department, comprising the Department of the East and the Department of the Gulf, and was finally abolished June 30, 1907, by General orders 95.

W65. ARIZONA, DEPARTMENT OF

[Established Apr. 15, 1870, by General orders 41, comprising the Territory of Arizona and part of California; by the same order it was placed under the Pacific Division (W51.) where it remained until that division was abolished in 1891. Previous to Apr. 15, 1870, this territory was part of the Department of California (W13.).]

The District of New Mexico was transferred to the Department of Arizona by General orders 121, Nov. 30, 1885, and 25, May 4, 1886; by General orders 84, 1890, to take effect Sept. 1 of that year, the District of New Mexico was discontinued, the military posts in that Territory reporting thereafter direct to the Department of Arizona.

By General orders 54, June 30, 1893, the Department of Arizona was merged into the Department of the Colorado (W14.), which consisted of Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, and Utah, that part of California which belonged to the Department of Arizona being transferred to the Department of California.

See, for history of the Department of Arizona to 1872, Outline descriptions of posts in geographical divisions and departments of United States (W9.2:P84).]
