[Though the Congressional directory does not appear among the numbered Congressional documents until 1881, a manual under that name has been issued from an early period in Congressional history and perhaps from the beginning. The earliest copy about which the Public Documents Library has information is for the 11th Congress (1809), although the first in its possession is for the 17th Congress (1821). The Directory was compiled and printed as a private venture till 1847, and the names of compilers and printers are many. In the 30th Congress (1848), the Directory assumed an official air by bearing on its title-page the words "compiled and published for the use of Congress by the postmaster of the House of Representatives." This style was continued until the 39th Congress (1865), when by joint resolution approved Feb. 14, the publication was put under the direction of the Joint Committee on Printing and required to be printed at the Government Printing Office. From that date down to the 55th Congress, the Directory was edited by the clerk of the Senate Committee on Printing, but from the 2d edition of the Directory for the 55th Congress, 2d session, through the 61st Congress it was compiled by A. J. Halford, who died in Apr. 1910. The early directories are queer little pamphlets, the 17th Congress copy being  $3\frac{7}{8}$  by  $5\frac{1}{4}$  inches in size and 47 pages thick, contrasting strongly with the 400 or 500 page octavo of today.

In assigning book numbers under Y4.P93<sup>1</sup> 1, the Congress and session are used as superior numbers with a dash between; a period is used to separate what precedes from the number of the edition following. In the book number, "sp" when used stands for special session of the Senate, and "ex" for extra session of Congress.]
